1. Education and Training in Sport Psychology

Education and Training must have been done in sport and exercise psychology. For example: motor and mental skills acquisition and training; attention and emotional regulation; motivation and behavior change; social influences including team dynamics; leadership & social support; personality and individual differences including self-concept, stress/anxiety and coping; measurement and data analysis; assessment – diagnosis; formulation, monitoring and evaluation; counselling, interventions, communication and coaching skills; physical and mental health; wellbeing; career development; transition; termination; crises and emergencies; working in multi-disciplinary teams and organizations; system change; professional practice and ethics; scientific and professional communications; research. There is a wide range of different types of education and training, and the following list is not exhaustive. This experience may also include personal training or other arrangements to ensure that practitioners are aware of and can manage appropriately their personal involvement in, and contribution to, the processes of the sport and exercise psychology service they practice (e.g. self-awareness in different settings,). Criteria of education and training needs to be defined in the context of sport and exercise psychology, e.g.:

- Certified attendance and participation in accredited courses and/or workshops aimed at further professional development
- Development of specific new skills through practice at work
- Certified attendance in intervision (mutual supervision by peers) meetings
- Certified attendance at a professional or scientific conference
- (Co-)authoring and/or editing of publications on research and/or professional issues
- Presentations to professional audiences
- reviewer for sport (exercise) psychology journals
- Editorial work on journals and books in psychology
- working as mentor or supervisor in sport and exercise psychology
- professional political involvement in sport and exercise psychology

2. Independent practice as sport and exercise psychologist

Show evidence of independent practice as sport and exercise psychologist of at least five full time years within the last 15 years. Please report and summarize research, education and counselling, intervention addressed to athletes, and team, sport services and organization., The work experience can be documented through the following items:

- Years/months during which a particular work role has been fulfilled
- Name of description of the work role
- Organization where the role has been carried out
- Responsibilities associated with the role
- Activities performed as part of the role
- Competencies developed as a result of performing (some of) the activities in that role

These requirements make evident that the Provisional EuroPsy Specialist Certificate in Sport Psychology is the result of activities (study and learning, work experiences, development of competencies) conducted after the graduation.

Education and Training in the Sport Psychology field	number of hours	Time period

Psychologists who took part in the pilot and who satisfied the requirements to get the Provisional EuroPsy Specialist Certificate in Sport Psychology, can receive a provisional “testimonium of specialist expertise. The participants in the pilot phase are not officially applying for the EuroPsy. Therefore, the participants in the pilot don’t have to pay any fees during the pilot phase. When the pilot and the Provisional EuroPsy Specialist certificate proposal will be approved by EFPA and the regular bodies (Specialist Awarding Committees) will be in place, the provisional testimonium can be exchanged for a Specialist EuroPsy Certificate in Sport Psychology. For the official EuroPsy Basic and the Specialist EuroPsy Certificate in Sport Psychology the applicants will have to pay a fee to the National Awarding Committee. This fee varies from country to country.
